

We can...

By working together, the HCSCC, AHPRA and the Boards can improve the quality and safety of health services.

If a Board believes there is a serious risk to public safety, it can restrict or remove a practitioner's right to practise.

We can't...

- give you advice about your health
- tell a practitioner to give you medication or treatment
- tell a practitioner to give you your health records
- help you bring legal proceedings against anybody.

Have you contacted the health service or health practitioner directly?

This is often the quickest way to resolve a complaint.

How to make a complaint about a:

- ▶ health or community service
- ▶ health practitioner

Health and Community Services
Complaints Commissioner

Australian Health Practitioner
Regulation Agency

What can the Australian Health Practitioner Regulation Agency do?

AHPRA receives complaints about registered health practitioners for the relevant Board¹. The Board registers health practitioners so they can practise their profession in Australia. The Register of practitioners is available at www.ahpra.gov.au/Registration/Register-of-Practitioners.

The Board will act to protect the public if:

- a practitioner's behaviour is placing the public at risk
- a practitioner is practising their profession in an unsafe way
- a practitioner's ability to make safe judgments about their patients might be impaired because of their health.

The Board might need to gather more information before it can take action.

The Board can ensure that to keep practising, the practitioner must:

- work with a supervisor
- have further education
- do or not do something to keep the public safe.

The Board can decide to talk to the HCSCC about your complaint.

For very serious matters, the Board may refer the practitioner to the South Australian Health Practitioners Tribunal. The tribunal can suspend or cancel the practitioner's registration.

If you make a complaint to a Board, AHPRA will update you about what is happening and let you know the Board's final decision.

You can complain to either AHPRA or HCSCC about a:

- Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander health practitioner
- Chinese medicine practitioner
- chiropractor
- dentist
- medical practitioner (doctor)
- midwife
- medical radiation practitioner
- nurse
- occupational therapist
- optometrist
- osteopath
- paramedic
- pharmacist
- physiotherapist
- podiatrist
- psychologist.

You can complain to the HCSCC about:

- hospitals
- medical practices
- ambulances
- mental health services
- unregistered health providers such as counsellors, massage therapists, homeopaths, naturopaths, iridologists, personal care attendants/aged care workers etc
- community services (including disability).

What does the Health and Community Services Complaints Commissioner do?

The HCSCC:

- supports your right to safe and high quality health care
- supports your right to complain
- is free and confidential
- is independent and doesn't take sides
- works to make sure complaints are used to improve the safety and quality of services.

If you make a complaint:

- you'll be heard
- you can change how you're treated in the future
- your complaint might make a difference for others.

If the practitioner is a registered health practitioner, the HCSCC must talk to AHPRA and the Board about your complaint to decide whether the Board or the HCSCC will manage all or part of your complaint.
